Financial Wellness for Your Team

The marketplace for better money conversations.

THE PROBLEM

Your team's money stress is already costing you.

59%

of employees report financial stress

PwC 2026

3.3 hrs

per week lost to money issues at work

Valoir 2025

2×

more likely to job-search when financially stressed

PwC 2026

A portal nobody logs into isn't financial wellness.

- Self-serve portals

Employees get a login to a tool. Usage drops off after month one. The stress stays.

- Product-backed advice

The 'advisor' earns commission. Employees sense it and stop trusting the guidance.

- One-size webinars

A lunch-and-learn that doesn't address anyone's specific situation. Polite attendance, zero behavior change.

What actually works is simpler: give people access to a real person they can trust, and let them talk about what's on their mind.

Human-first financial wellness.

- A person, not a portal

Real conversations with real people. It gets used because it actually helps.

- No product behind the advice

Fee-only coaches. No commission, no product sales. That changes what they recommend.

- Private by default

You sponsor the access. What someone discusses stays between them and their coach.

What your team gets access to.

1:1 coaching sessions

Over video, with a vetted, fee-only coach.

Free intro call

No commitment — a way to see if coaching helps.

Group sessions

Lunch-and-learns on topics your team cares about.

AI Money Coach

24/7 AI chat trained in our coaching approach.

Written action plans

Every session ends with something concrete.

Benefits navigation

Help employees use the benefits you already pay for.

Your team has benefits they're not fully using.

A 12th & Good Street coach helps employees understand and use the benefits you're already paying for. That means better ROI on your existing benefits spend — not just another line item.

Common gaps coaches help close

- Not contributing enough to get the full employer match
- HSA or FSA available but unused
- Life and disability coverage not understood
- EAP exists but nobody knows about it
- Tuition reimbursement going unclaimed

THE BUSINESS CASE

$5.50 return for every $1 invested.

PFEEF independent study, 8,233 participants. Conservative estimate.

Productivity recovery

Stressed workers lose 3.3
hrs/week.
Coaching recovers productive time.

Turnover reduction

Replacing an employee costs
50-200% of their salary.

Reduced absenteeism

Participants average 5 fewer unscheduled absence days.

Healthcare cost savings

Costs decreased 4.5% for users
vs. increased 19.4% for non-users.

Getting started is a conversation, not a procurement cycle.

01

We scope the program together

We talk about your team's size, what you're already offering, and what would actually be useful. No standard package.

02

Your team books privately

Employees choose a coach and book on their own time. The cost is covered by you, and nobody has to ask permission.

03

You see the impact, not the details

Aggregate reporting — participation rates, session counts, topics by category. Never an individual's conversation.

PRICING

Two ways to fund the program.

We're building this with our founding employer partners, so pricing is flexible. Let's figure out what makes sense for your team.

Session Pool

Fund a block of sessions your team draws from.
Good way to start and see how people use it.

- No per-employee commitment
- Top up anytime
- Includes group sessions
- Aggregate usage reporting

Per-Seat

Full program

Every employee gets standing access to the full financial wellness program.

- Every employee covered
- Free intro call for everyone
- Group sessions & lunch-and-learns
- Onboarding & comms support

Financial wellness that people actually use.

Most programs sit on a shelf. This one is a conversation — and that's why it works.

Let's talk about your team
